Think of a plant. What things does the plant need to grow?

That's right! It needs sun and water in order to grow correctly. Take away sunlight, the plant will not grow correctly and will eventually die. Take away the water and the plant will struggle and die. Both the sunlight and the water are needed. Giving a plant more sunlight does not make up for a lack of water and giving more water does not make up for a lack of sunlight.

In families, children are like plants, and their mom and dad are like the sun and water. Children need both a mom and a dad to grow and develop. Just as you cannot substitute sunlight for water or water for sunlight, you cannot just have any two people caring for children. The best combination of ingredients for children to thrive is to have both their mom and their dad.
