

Building Healthy Relationships to Prevent Divorce What is Divorce?

A divorce is when either the man or woman, or both partners, in a marriage seeks to end the relationship and live their lives separately. Sometimes divorce is needed for relationships experiencing high levels of conflict, abuse, or when one partner is not faithful to the other. In these cases, divorce serves as a means to protect the innocent, the child or the faithful spouse, from the far reaching effects of abuse. But divorce is never the first or best option.

Additionally, many relationships that could be saved are ending in divorce. In this unit we will learn skills to become the kind of person we want to be and develop skills to bless our future marriage. While we recognize the many personal reasons necessitating divorce, we seek to emphasize the importance of marriage to the couple, their children, and society. Research shows individuals, children, and societies are blessed by strong marriages.
